From the President

Dear Cape Girardeau County Genealogical Society Members,

First of all, I'd like to announce our new officers for 2006-2008. I am staying on for my last term as President. This is my fourth term, and I think 8 years is enough for anyone to head an organization. Other officers include Vice-President, Gail Hennecke; Recording Secretary, Sandra Fluegge; Corresponding Secretary, Lisa Drum; Treasurer, Jane Randol Jackson; and Historian, Jean Adams. Our committees are headed by Dawn Detring (Publications), Lisa Drum (Publicity), Jane Jackson (Membership), and a committee (Library). I'd also like to offer a BIG thanks to Ken Schlimme, who has mailed out the Collage for many years.

The Library Committee has been working out very well. Those of us who are available show up at the Archive Center on the first Saturday of the month, to inventory, sort, and generally tidy up the library. In addition, Dorothy Rowley has been adding and numbering new books to the inventory. I can happily report that our book loss rate has reached zero since our move to the Archive Center, and we are grateful to the Archive staff for their help and cooperation. We are still in the process of replacing some books that belonged to Riverside Regional Library—the most recent being a CD version of Douglass's History of Southeast Missouri.

Our book sale, primarily of books left to us by Betty Mills, was quite a success. Even though we had to move the date to August 8 to avoid conflict with the Jackson Homecomers event, we still managed to bring in a crowd, and sell about $350 worth of books. We still have quite a number left, and I have a list of the remaining books that I can send to any members who might be interested. Then, we have decided to offer the remainder to libraries in the Southeast Missouri area. A special thanks to all who helped with the sale, especially Dawn Detring, Jane Jackson, and Dorothy Rowley!

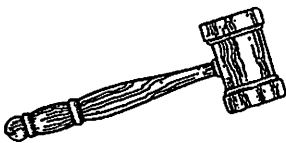

The Society has made two more publications available. One of these, Doyle's Diary, is a transcription of the diary of Leo Doyle, and chronicles events in Cape Girardeau between November 1882 and January 1900. We've known about this diary for quite some time, but Betty Mills had indexed it before her passing, which increases its value to those who are researching the area and time. Betty and others also had produced a loose-leaf book on the Alexander McLain family, and we have a number of copies for sale. Order information is on the inside back cover.

This Collage includes another translation of a document in French from the pre-Louisiana Purchase era of Cape Girardeau County's history. We are very grateful to Ruth Randall for contributing these interesting documents, which she has found as a part of her research on the Randols, and to the Western Historical Manuscripts Collection for permission to print the translations. Thanks Ruth!

Please remember that we always need new material for our quarterly. As always, I guarantee that any articles you send will go in the next issue!

Sincerely,

Bill Eddleman

DEPOSITION OF RICHARD WALLER REGARDING AN INCIDENT BETWEEN HIS FATHER, JOSEPH WALLER, AND SAMUEL RANDOL

Contributed by Ruth Randall

[Western Historical Manuscript Collection, Colombia, MO
Cape Girardeau County Records 1794-1842 (C3676) Folder 8
Translated from the French by Claude Marie Senninger PhD]

Recorded the 3rd day of October 1801
Before Don Louis Lorimier, Commander of the Post of Cape Girardeau, appeared
Mr. Richard Waller, son of Joseph Waller, domiciled at the Post, who made the following declaration.
To wit:

1st The aforementioned Richard Waller says that his father Joseph Waller having lost several horses through disease or accident and holding Samuel Randoll responsible, the aforementioned Joseph Waller said that he would kill as many horses belonging to Samuel Randoll than he Joseph Waller had lost. And the above mentioned Richard Waller declares that he would kill the whole (?) horse and the gray one of the aforementioned Samuel Randoll and that then he would be all square with him.

2nd The above mentioned maker of the declaration says that Joseph Waller, having lost a sick horse which he had bought from the above mentioned Samuel Randoll in exchange for a cow and a calf, said in his presence that Samuel Randoll would lose as much as he (Joseph Waller) had given for his horse.

3rd The above mentioned maker of this declaration says to have heard it said by Joseph Waller that Samuel Randoll would lose his race (?) with Andre` Ramsey (?) because he (Joseph Waller) had a second set of keys which opened the lock of Samuel Randoll's stable (Samuel Randoll to whom Joseph Waller had sold this lock). The above mentioned maker of this declaration adds to have been sent (by Joseph Waller) to tell Mr. Samuel Figstay(?) not to be afraid because he Joseph Waller had a key which opened the door of Samuel Randoll's stable.

4th The above mentioned maker of this declaration announces besides that Joseph Waller, his father, wanted to send him to Anse-a'-laGraissee¹ or to Mise're² to look for some poison to poison the horses and that he (the maker of the declaration) having refused to go there, Joseph Waller said that he would be able to obtain enough poison in the establishment.

5th The same maker of the declaration announces that about 3 years before he had seen Joseph Waller, his father, pick something which resembled a button, crush it with a knife blade, sew the content in a piece of meat and present it to eat to Mr. Joseph Crutchlaw's dog and the dog died the following night. He adds that Joseph Waller made him (to him the maker of the declaration) do the same thing to James Piper's dog, but that the dog became only sick.

And the aforementioned maker of this declaration adds that he is ready to testify under oath of the truth of everything that he declared above, anytime that he will be commanded to so.
He signed in our presence and the one of several witnesses at Cape Girardeau on the 3rd day of October 1801.

Part III.

Christopher F. Betten.

LESS than a century ago coal was absolutely unknown as a fuel. It was in the year 1815, at Schuylkill, Pennsylvania, that the discovery of how to make the "black stones" burn was made by a rolling mill man, who, after many vain attempts to light it by various means, gave it up in disgust. A few hours later he had occasion to return to the place and found the "black stones," as they were then termed, blazing with intense heat. Then the discovery was made. But for many years afterwards people could not be induced to use the new fuel. They thought it a fraud, and it was only by coaxing and bribing blacksmiths, journeymen and house holders that they got them into the habit of using anthracite.

But today it is different. The coal business is among the largest and most lucrative of any of the mercantile pursuits. Stone coal has absolutely superceded wood and charcoal as a general fuel, and is today the greatest boon to mankind.

The prince of coal merchants of this section is Mr. Chris. F. Betten of this city, who carries a large stock of all the leading coals and coke. Among his specialties are the Carterville district lump, egg and nut coals, and washed egg and nut coal, besides others of the superior brands. Eight men and seven teams are kept busy. He has already built up a very flattering trade and his business premises are fitted with every convenience to facilitate the filling of orders promptly and satisfactorily. Being located close to many of the large manufacturing plants of Cape Girardeau he supplies them with an immense lot of coal during the year and they find it most convenient to purchase first-class goods at the most reasonable prices from a large and well-stocked house.

Mr. Betten also deals in ice, and as the tendency of modern times is toward purity in all that we eat and drink, this is evidence sufficient that Mr. Betten keeps the best ice. With the advent of the ice-making machine the prices of ice went down and the quality went up. Mr. Betten handles no ice except that made from thoroughly distilled water, with all impurities and disease-breeding germs eradicated. His large yards are located at the corner of Main street and Washington avenue and the office at 216 Main street, phone 534.

Mr. Christopher F. Betten was born in Mine Lamotte, Madison county, Missouri, April 12, 1856, and received his primary education in St. Louis and Atchison, Kansas. He is an undergraduate of St. Benedict's college. He was married to Miss Julia M. Hawkins of this city, November 25, 1880. Three children have blessed this union, the two living being Florence E., now Mrs. Wade H. Boone, and David H., a bright and interesting son, eleven years of age.

Mr. Betten began life just one-third of a century ago, and we are told by numerous persons that since beginning this career every act of his has redounded to his good name. His first position was that of bookkeeper for the Carondelet Savings Bank in 1872, where he remained for six years. In 1878 he was appointed Deputy Collector of Internal Revenue for the second district of Missouri, where he remained until 1884. In 1887 he was made private secretary to the Assistant Secretary of the Interior at Washington, D. C. This position he held until 1891. At the fall election of 1892 he was elected circuit clerk and ex-officio recorder. These offices he held by re-election every four years till December, 1900. In 1901 he embarked in his present business, and as he says he is satisfied with his public career, it is probable that he will continue to build up the already mammoth concern that he started but a short while ago.

Mr. Betten is widely known for his enterprise and general business ability, and exhibits in his character the traits of honesty and integrity which have ever distinguished the conduct of his life. He is a member of the Catholic church and of the Order of Elks.

Captain James B. Nesmith.

WE are proud to say that all political parties often elect or appoint to office, as the case may be, pure men, men of upright, honest principles, men upon whom the curse of political chicanery has never rested, men who are ever deserving and in whom the public has confidence. From a class who were former tillers of the soil, as it were, come such men who have made the most satisfactory office holders of our country; and it is safe to say, as a rule, that it is among the older class that the above requisites are to be found.

The above principles formed the opinion held by the Honorable Mayor and city council when they appointed Captain James B. Nesmith to the office of civil engineer of the city of Cape Girardeau; a gentlemen competent and worthy in every respect, a man of nearly a half century's experience. For years he was the civil engineer and superintendent of construction of the Houck railroad lines. He has filled many other positions of honor and trust where accuracy was indispensable. So, such an appointment by his honor the Mayor and the council could only prove an honor to the city and due recognition of our old-time citizen.

Captain James H. Nesmith, a civil engineer, has been a resident of the city of Cape Girardeau for the past thirty-five years. He is a native of Pike county, Missouri, born February 5th, 1837, and received his education at Canton, Missouri. After leaving school, at the age of twenty-one, he worked on his father's farm until the breaking out of the war of 1861, when he cast his lot with the South, enlisting in the Confederate army in June, 1861, under Col. Martin E. Green. His first fight was at Athens on the Des Moines River in Northeast Missouri.

It was in this fight that Captain Nesmith claims to be the originator of the remark that has always been credited to General Sherman, or rather, it was there that he thought war was h---, but when he struck Lexington, Missouri, where his regiment had all the fighting to do, he knew it was h---. But the Captain was a stayer and participated in more than twenty different engagements, and did not surrender until June, 1865, at Shreveport, Louisiana.

After the close of the war he located in this city and on September 2, 1872, was united in wedlock to Miss Mary L. Brown of this city. Their union was blessed by one son, Malcom B., now engaged in farming in Scott county. Capt. Nesmith's wife died November 27, 1874. He now resides at 322 North Lorimier street and has his office in room S, court house building.

Captain Nesmith, while nearing the allotted span of life allowed man—three score and ten—is still an active man and as able to attend to his official duties as a man of forty years.

Theodore L. Landl.

CAPE GIRARDEAU has a distinction of having a number of prominent business men, prominent because they are honest, prominent because the goods they carry recommend themselves. Such a person is Mr. Theodore L. Landl, who conducts the most modern dairy in the city, a man who believes the best is none too good for our people, who believes that all are entitled to full measure and weight. His large stock of milk, cream, butter and cheese is the freshest and purest to be found upon the market, having the most modern facilities for the carrying of his stock. Cleanliness is one of the principal features of a pure dairy.

As an example of the popularity of this plant we will say that his patronage, during the hot summer days, for a cold, refreshing glass of milk is greater than the patronage of the best saloon in the city. His family trade is one of the largest in the city, and those who deal with this dairy never change. The writer of this article has been a patrol of Mr. Landl for a number of years and has yet to hear the first word of complaint. Locally his goods command the best prices in the city. Mr. Landl's plant is a large, two-story brick, with a floor space of 3,600 square feet, with all the modern appurtenances of a first-class dairy, with with the usual number of employees and wagons.

Mr. Landl was born in this county, near Wells, November 4, 1874, and educated in the public schools of this county. He was united in wedlock to Miss Lucile Gaynor, November 6, 1901, at Minneapolis, Minnesota. He is a member of the M. W. A. and German Lutheran church. His residence is in connection with his plant, which is at No. 10 Aquamsi street, telephone No. 120.

Mr. Landl is one of the progressive men of the city and a thorough business man, highly respected by all who know him, kind and liberal in his dealings, yet a money maker and a money saver.

Tarlton's Drug Store.

THE thriving city of Cape Girardeau enjoys the distinction of having located in the most prominent section a first-class, modern drug store, and a visitor cannot help by observe the complete arrangements which are necessary to an enterprising business of this kind. This store is owned and conducted by G. W. Tarlton, M. D., one of the oldest registered pharmacists in the city. Dr. Tarlton located in Cape Girardeau years ago and since then has been devoted to his profession and his hundreds of patrons testify to his carefulness, fairness and liberality.

The store, which is 25x60 feet in size, impresses the visitor or patron with its air of neatness and business activity. The stock comprises a complete line of drugs, chemicals, druggists' sundries, physicians' supplies, patent and proprietary remedies and an exquisite assortment of fine perfumes, toilet waters, soaps, brushes, and, in fact, everything from the bath and boudoir. This store carries blank books, etc., and the finest line of fancy stationery in the city. The stock of cigars, tobacco and smokers' supplies is well selected and appeals to those who appreciate the best.

Dr. Tarlton came to Cape Girardeau thirty-five years ago as a pharmacist and began the practice of medicine ten years later in 1881. He has been successful in his business and by his promptness in filling all prescriptions with fresh and pure drugs, has gained considerable renown. He is a gentleman of rare accomplishments, public spirited, kind hearted and popular, socially and personally, throughout the city.

DAVID W. P. TARLTON

Many able men grace the ranks of the Cape Girardeau pharmacists and among the first, and youngest, is the young gentleman named above. David W. P. Tarlton is a son of G. W. Tarlton, M. D. He is manager of his father's drug store and has an extensive knowledge of his profession. He is a genial and pleasant young man, always ready to attend the wants of his patrons. His knowledge of pharmacopia is but little less than his ambition to succeed in his chosen profession. He handles drugs and compounds prescriptions with a rapidity and precision which astonishes the oldest physicians and makes them everlasting friends.

David W. P. Tarlton was born in Orangeburg, Cape Girardeau county, Missouri, June 24th 1884, received his education in Cape Girardeau, and is an undergraduate of the Normal School. He will graduate next May from the dental college in Louisville, Ky., and will locate in Cape Girardeau. As the years go by people recognize more and more clearly the importance of attending to the teeth. The carelessness which existed in this matter is gradually disappearing for two reasons: The absence of pain in dental operations, effected by modern methods, and the low prices at which the work is done. Mr. Tarlton is taking advantage of these things, and with a knowledge of general medicine and an expert knowledge of odontology, he will locate in this city after his graduation capable of treating our citizens with entire satisfaction.

Mr. Tarleton is a young man highly esteemed by all who know him and is sure to make his way in the world.

Johnston's Department Store.

THERE are many beautiful stores in Cape Girardeau, but it is doubtful if there is one which surpasses that of Edward A. Johnston's general merchandise house. Situated on the northeast corner of Broadway and Main streets, one block west of the Union Depot, it is an admirable business location. Large, handsome show windows, such as are seen in the big city stores, give to the establishment a metropolitan air. The windows are always dressed in exquisite taste and are brilliant with the latest creations gathered from the eastern markets. To a visitor in Cape Girardeau the spaciousness of this handsome store, 4,500 square feet, appeals strikingly and somewhat astonishes. "Surely," the visitor would say, "this can not be a town of only ten or twelve thousand people with a store like this, which would be a credit to many of the larger cities of the country." But Cape Girardeau men are nothing if not progressive. Edward A. Johnston is a man well versed in all branches of the mercantile business, chivalric in his sense of business honor, with high ambitions and a consuming desire to keep in touch with modern business methods.

One of the largest stocks in Southeast Missouri is carried by this house, and that there be no doubt as to its seasonableness and worth, the proprietor visits the best markets in the country every season. With the eye of an expert he seizes what is suitable to his trade and invariably brings back some magnificent bargains that win the hearts of Cape Girardeau's discerning buyers.

We have neither the time to go into details, or to pretend to itemize any part of this great stock of dry goods, ladies' fancy dress goods, millinery goods, gloves, etc., etc., but they are all there, and more too—gent's clothing, shoes, hats, caps, etc.

Mr. Johnston also carries one of the finest lines of staple groceries in the city and it is to this department everybody whose appetite is fickle and non-responsive should pay a visit, for this is the mecca for all desiring table delicacies. However, the staple article found elsewhere is never lacking here. Those who are hard to please go to Mr. Johnston's and invariably get what they want. It is the capacity for satisfying the ultra critical customers that has given this house the splendid reputation it so consistently maintains.

Mr. Edward Johnston began life as an elevator boy for the Dodd-Brown Dry Goods Co., of St. Louis, in 1879, and received the usual promotions that all young men receive who perform their duties honestly and promptly. In 1884 his house found itself without a traveling salesman at home, and the only alternate was to send Mr. Johnston to take orders of some of their special customers. His return was expected within a day or two, but his success was so great that his house kept him out for thirty days. When he returned he was given a grip, a territory and some minor instructions and started out, and as a full-fledged "drummer" he stuck with the house, although it changed hands several times, until he landed with Ely Walker & Co., where he remained until 1898. He then came to Cape Girardeau and in connection with E. W. Flentge opened up a general dry goods house, the firm name being Flentge-Johnston Co. In 1898, at the expiration of the second year, he withdrew from the above firm and started business for himself at his present stand.

Mr. Johnston was born at Tamaroa, Illinois, August 4th, 1865, and was educated in his native state. In 1886 he was joined in wedlock to Miss Marie Barber of Tamaroa, Illinois. They are the parents of two accomplished daughters, Misses Edna and Margaret.

Mr. Johnston is a member of A. F. and A. M., P. H. R., R. A. M., K. T. Council No. 55 and B. P. O. E., and resides with his family in a beautiful residence at 223 North Lorimier street.

William H. Coerver, Druggist.

COUPLED with the medical fraternity of every live city is a modern equipped drug house. Cape Girardeau is in no wise behind her sisters in this line; in fact, she is so fortunate as to have one of the best arranged, neatest, cleanest and most perfect drug houses in Southeastern Missouri. William H. Coerver is proprietor of this, the only strictly drug and prescription house of the city. One of the most important features of this house is the prescription department, presided over by Mr. Ed. Heil, a graduate of the College of Pharmacy of Indianapolis, Indiana, an expert and licensed pharmacist. So one can readily perceive that all prescriptions receive prompt and careful attention.

The material medica can ill afford to depend upon cheap concerns where reliability is conspicuously absent. Physicians' prescriptions are filled here from new and pure drugs, which go a long way in healing the sick. His store is a model of neatness and cleanliness; shelves, counters and cases being resplendent with bottled chemicals, and proprietary medicines. Of toilet articles there is no end. There is no better evidence of refinement and culture than a person's choice of toilet articles. Frail and shoddy goods that perish with the using or vanish in a day cost but little but are doubly dear in the end. No such material can be found in Mr. Coerver's store—only the very choicest and best.

Here are a few of the high class and fancy articles: Delicate vases, elegant perfume atomizers, beautiful jewel, photo, handkerchief, collar, cuff and glove boxes, shaving and manicure sets and beautiful articles in celluloid. Mirrors in all styles, shapes and sizes.

Mr. Coerver came to Cape Girardeau thirty-two years ago, and for about a year clerked in a drug store. He then bought his present place of business, and has always worked among the foremost of Cape Girardeau county's pharmacists. His knowledge of pharmacopoeia is recognized by all, and he has been for many years a prominent member of the Pharmaceutical Society of Southeast Missouri.

Mr. Coerver is a gentleman of the most agreeable manners, easy to approach, pleasant and affable and recognized for his generosity and kindness of heart. No poor or indigent person wanting medicine has ever been turned from his door until supplied.

George B. Siemers.

CAPE GIRARDEAU has many elegant and tastefully arranged saloons, but none stand higher in order and quiet, reliable goods and polite attention than the one on the southeast corner of Main and Themis streets, conducted by Mr. George B. Siemers. Mr. Siemers is a young man highly esteemed by all who knew him, so polite, so suave, so gentlemanly that he makes friends with everyone with whom he comes in contact. He is not one of your "hale fellows well met," but a pleasant, quiet, unassuming gentleman.

Mr. Siemers has never had what the boys call a "scrap" in his life; he has never had occasion to tell a customer that he must keep quiet; the very air impresses every one that he must keep quiet; the very air impresses every one that he must be a gentleman while in the house. The very aspect demands quiet and order, and these characteristics show Mr. Siemers to be particularly fitted for this particular business. Noted for his liberality and social qualities, yet demanding the respect of all his patrons, he has made a host of friends. His place is conducted in the most business-like and respectable manner—a place of quiet retirement and safety, a place where only first-class goods are sold, a place where poisonous decoctions are neither sold nor given away, a place that caters only to the best trade, a place where the bar, bar fixtures, beer pump and ice chest are always clean and of modern make. So it is not astonishing that he has the largest patronage of the best trade. He carries a large stock of both foreign and domestic wines.

His liquors, bourbon, rye, gin, vermouth and kuemmel, are all of the highest grades and most popular brands, and he handles the celebrated Cape Girardeau beer. In bottle beer he carries all brands, including the world-famed Budweiser. His cigars are the height of perfection, and his place is the rendezvous for smokers. Only the choicest are kept in stock.

Mr. Siemers was born in Cape Girardeau, April 15, 1881, and here educated. He is a member of the Lutheran church and is unmarried.

F. W. Oberheide.

POLITE, affable and liberal, F. W. Oberheide, the proprietor of the Broadway Saloon and Bowling Alleys, has made a host of friends who have watched his career with no little interest. This pre-eminently first-class institution is situated at 407 Broadway. The premises are neatly arranged and are at all times kept in the cleanest and best condition. The fixtures are truly magnificent and the bar is a neat, handsome one, being inlaid with French bevel plate mirrors and well supplied with the best the market affords. The entire interior is arranged with a view to comfort for the many patrons who call daily at this place.

Mr. Oberheide has been in business here for the past ten years, during which time he has built up a wonderful trade. He keeps only the choicest of wines, whiskies, brandies and cigars to be had, and it is only natural to conjecture that the Cape beer is always on draught, which is the freshest and best the celebrated Cape Brewing company is enabled to place upon the market. On account of the pure grade of whiskies and wines which Mr. Oberheide carries in stock, no better place in the city can be found to procure such goods for medicinal purposes or to be used as beverages. The most courteous treatment is accorded all who enter Mr. Oberheide's place of business and a customer is never allowed to remain unsatisfied.

Mr. Oberheide is a thorough business man and an honorable, upright citizen and we predict for him a continuation of the marked success which has been his in the past. Mr. Oberheide has made an enviable reputation by keeping the "lid" down; never allowing friend or customer access to his bar on Sunday, and his saloon is known as "the gentleman's place," a place where gentlemen can meet and have a social visit.

In connection with Mr. Oberheide's saloon is a bowling alley for ladies and gentlemen. Wednesday is ladies' day, exclusively, the hours being from 2 to 4, and many patrons come on those days. This exercise is superior to any other athletic science, and is becoming quite a popular amusement among the ladies, both old and young. It is an athletic of the most beautiful nature. Another good feature of this institution is the fact that this bowling alley has no connection whatever with the saloon department, and is entirely free from loungers or male occupants on Wednesday afternoon. Security and privacy are guaranteed on those days without interruption by curious and idle loafers. The room in which the bowling alley is located is 40x100 feet, the alleys occupying a width of five feet by eighty-six feet in length. The floor is composed of one by three-inch boards of maple and walnut set on edge, alternately.

These are the only alleys in Southeast Missouri where the pins automatically replace themselves. Automatic pin-setting machines, which set the pins accurately and prevent bunching, are used. These are very expensive and are to be found only on the finest alleys. But there is nothing too good for Mr. Oberheide and his patrons. This bowling alley is a resort for both ladies and gentlemen, who heartily recommend the place and its proprietor to their friends.

Mr. Oberheide was born in Cape Girardeau November 22, 1864, and received his education in the public schools of this city. He was married to Miss Emily Vogelsang January 27, 1895, in Cape Girardeau. Three children have blessed this union. Mr. Oberheide was at one time a member of the city central committee of the Republican party. He belongs to two orders, the Eagles and the Sons of Veterans, and is also an active member of the Commercial Club. His prosperity has been due to his own ambition. At the age of ten years he went to work as a cigarmaker where he remained for five years, when he went to the Planters' mill and worked there ten years. In 1897 he succeeded his father-in-law in the saloon business at 433 Broadway. In 1900 he moved one door east and in November, 1904, he opened his present place. He is also a stockholder in the Cape Brewing Company.

Mr. Oberheide is one of our most highly respected business men and citizens, and enjoys the confidence of a host of friends and patrons. His success is due to the fair treatment of customers and his honest and straight-forward business methods.

LORBERG FUNERAL HOME (24 MAR 1951 - 25 AUG 1963)

Part III

(Editor's note: These transcribed records were apparently done by Society members at some point in the past, and were among the materials in the collection of Betty Mills. Because I could not find them in the Society's library, they are presented in a two-part article in this Collage and the June issue. Lorberg Funeral Home was at 433 S. Sprigg St. in Cape Girardeau during the time of these records. In recent years, it moved to a new location on N. West End Blvd. The format of these listings includes last name, given name; birth date; birthplace; death date; deathplace; parents and their birthplaces if given; informant, spouse, or closest relative; and cemetery.
